FLOOR DEBATE

February 10, 2004 LB 1049

there are right now. The pages are passing around a piece of paper that showed there's between, what...the cost...the offset cost to the trust fund would be between $60,000 and $131,000 a year. So when you include the entire state, why, it wouldn't be that great of a cost, I wouldn't think. And this is from the legal counsel at the Nebraska Workforce Development, Department of Labor.

SENATOR HARTNETT: But your amendment, you said, again, is it would just affect people that would be eligible for full-time Social Security? They'd have to be at least 65? If you were 62 you couldn't qualify for this? Is that what you're...?

SENATOR LOUDEN: No, my amendment, I guess, doesn't include people that are under 65. It's just people that are on the Social Security offset wouldn't. So someone that's drawing it at age 62, or, I guess, would be eligible for the same benefit. If you was on...oh, what do you call it when you can't work and you draw Social Security? Disability. If you've got disability, then I presume you couldn't hold a full-time job, and probably be in any type of a job that would pay unemployment insurance. So this has to be somebody that's somewhat able-bodied.

SENATOR HARTNETT: To work. Thank you, Senator Louden. I...it's...you know, reviewing this, it looks like a reasonable amendment. I want to...might try to do some more research on the effort. And so if there's...if I have any time, I would give it to Senator Chambers. I think he's got his light on, so.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Senator Chambers, you have about one-fifteen.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Mr. President. Thank you, Senator Hartnett. I'm opposed to the bill itself. I respect what Senator Louden is trying to do. If there were a horse that I intended to annihilate, I certainly would do nothing to place astride that horse's back a person for whom I have concern. So I'm not going to support Senator Louden's amendment, as alluring as it is, because I want this nag to go to the glue factory, after we give it an appropriate send-away. These bills, when we begin to discuss them, if they do anything, should bring to our
